

*"I gained my basic Christian understanding in my home church, but my time at a Mennonite college helped to make my faith my own."
—a college student*

"The values, friendships and Christian vocational calling that I received at my Mennonite school provided a critical compass for the rest of my life. I am enormously grateful for the profound ways in which it has shaped and formed my life and vocational ministry."

—high school alumnus

"When I passed by the [school] as a college student, I felt that safe, secure feeling experienced as a child. When I met my teacher as an adult, I told her, 'You are a second mother to me.'"

—early childhood alumnus

"My teachers have influenced my life by making me more confident and teaching me about integrity. When a student has a problem, the teachers sit down with them and talk to them about it ... then they pray with them."

—middle school student

"I was with people who loved God, who had global perspectives, and there at the seminary I received a solid grounding in scripture."

—seminary alumnus
